The Green Man is a legendary symbol of rebirth, representing the cycle of new growth every spring. The Green Man is depicted in a sculpture or other representation of a face made of or surrounded by leaves, in this case, Maple Leaves. Found in many cultures from many ages, the Green Man is often related to natural vegetation deities. Often used as decorative architectural ornaments, such as the Canadian Parliament Hill's Green Man stone carvings outside on the walls and inside built into the architectural design.

All of our carvings come with a certificate of authenticity signed and dated by the artist. There is also a coin embedded into the back to help with the dating of the art.
